DESIGNER STUDIO

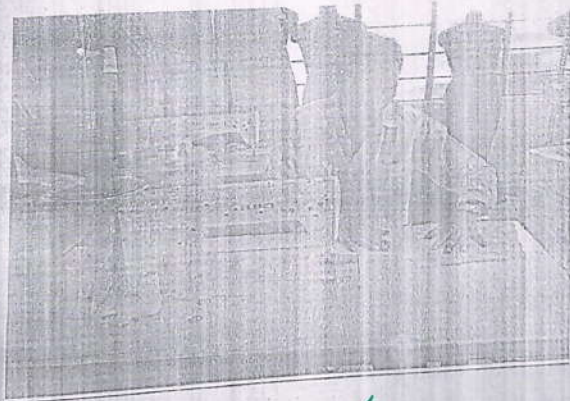

At Black, We not only have a very experienced in-house design team but also have a design team overseas, That works on forecasts and trends and puts together the color palette, silhouettes and fabrics for the season. We work with innovative fabrics like our linens and modals this season and use creative style features and washes for E.g. bio-wash on our corduroys and denims. We provide a perfect blend of style and comfort. Our Team is always working on the concept of "Focus on Change" as change is the only constant.

SAMPLING DEPARTMENT

Sampling department is the next on to the designing department. This is the one where samples are developed. The function of this department is pattern making, grading and making of proto sample are carried out in this department. The buyers give their comments on the shown sample of his choice and then the changes are thus made to it so as to prepare a proto sample. The sample is generally of size "M".

SPREADING DEPARTMENT

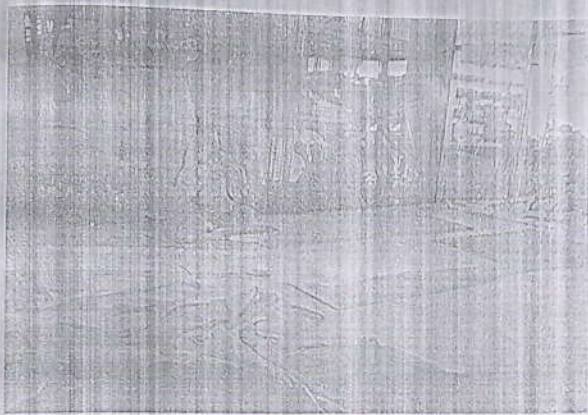

Spreading is the process of smooth lying of fabrics in super imposed layers of the specified length. It is the process of super posing plies of materials on a table in a manner which permits this plies to be cut simultaneously into product components.

In this department, the file comes from the pre-production department which contains all the necessary details with the swatch of the fabric regarding to the style sample.

In spreading department the fabric is being spread on the cutting table, In spreading process layering of the fabric is done depending upon the face and nap of the fabric, and type of the fabric. After the spreading process is done, marker plan is set on the lay so that the cutting will be easier. Now cutting is done.

Principal
Sh. Lal Bahadur Shastri Arya
Mahila College, BARNALA

CUTTING

Garments are kept in bulk

A lay is created with a number of piles spread one above another

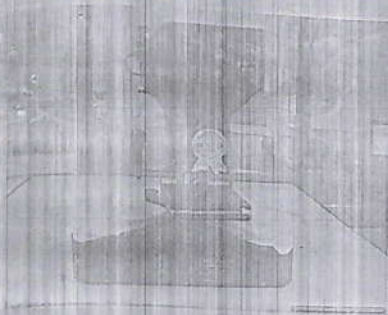

The main objective of the cutting department is to cut the parts accurately and economically

Embroidery and printing: Checks for any embroidery and printing program and follow up these department accordingly

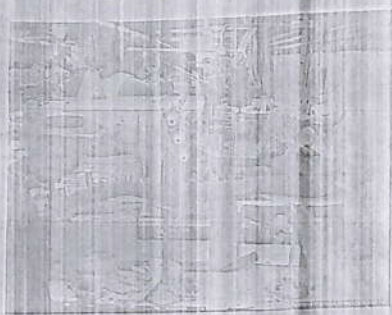

Cutting average: Used to determine the cost of raw materials for each garments

Fusing: Also carried out in cutting room. The components along with the cut fusing materials are kept between two paper sheet & the pack is passed through fusing machine.

PRESSING

Just one press cloth is not enough.

by Jacque Goldsmith excerpted from "Make a Press-Cloth Wardrobe," Threads #154, p. 44

Just as no single outfit suits every occasion, one press cloth isn't right for all your sewing ventures. The correct cloth protects your fabric and enhances pressing techniques.

I use a press cloth every time the iron touches the fabric's right side. I wouldn't go out in the hot sun without sunscreen, and I wouldn't put a hot iron on fabric's face without a press cloth.

Here, I'll tell you how to match the correct cloth to the pressing at hand; my collection includes muslin, silk organza, cotton shirting, worsted wool, cotton canvas, and flannel. I'll also share
